In Russian. Analysis of stomachs and crops of 300 birds, and of castings and droppings are tabulated for 24 non-passerine species of forest birds. [Gamebirds included are: willow grouse, black grouse and hazel grouse.]

Varshavskiy, S. N., and M. N. Shilov. SPRING AND SUMMER FEEDING HABITS OF THE DESERT RAVEN IN THE NORTHERN ARAL TERRITORY. Zool. Zh. 37(10): 1521-1530. 1958. [USDA Transl. (Russian) 10759.]

Distribution, ecological peculiarities, general characteristics, feeding habits (geographic and seasonal) of the desert raven. Jerboa and gophers are major food items. The frequent occurrence of jerboa (Dipodidae) in stomachs of ravens indicate that previous estimates of this mammal have been low and that the distribution pattern is wider than believed earlier. Studies of the food habits of other carnivorous birds (including the eagle-owl) support the idea of a wider distribution pattern of the jerboa in n. Aral territory.
